

ABSTRACT

5

An intraocular lens comprises an optic and one or more haptics, wherein the or each haptic can be compressed in the plane of the lens, and which additionally comprises, around the optic, an annular rim that, in use, is in contact with the posterior capsular sac.